iPhone Week: Accessory of the Day - Overboard waterproof case

Singing in the rain

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 7 November 2007

There are tonnes of cases available for the iPhone, and no doubt even more to launch when the phone is actually available in the UK after 9th November, but this version offers something unique - waterproofing.

OK, so granted, it's not the most attractive item you'll buy for your iPhone, but its function is a good one.

The case is made from a durable 100% waterproof material, with a transparent front, giving protection from all elements so if you want to go jogging in the rain with your iPhone - you're sorted.

The case costs £14.99 and you'll need a headphone adaptor too - like the ones from Belkin or Griffin Technology that are roughly around a tenner.
