WEBSITE OF THE DAY - hatebook.com

The alter ego of social networking

by Ian Hughes published on 15 November 2007

Social networking sites are coming in for a bit of criticism recently, and some might say justifiably so. There's a growing consensus of opinion that they should maybe take a bit more responsibility for their content.

This one could be adding fuel to the fire if taken out of context, but we thought we'd mention it anyhow.

Most of what's here is people letting off steam about things they hate in life. Hopefully it will make you chuckle as it will ring bells with most normal, everyday people. There are a few entries though that seem to cross the line in our books, but most of it is (hopefully) pretty harmless venting.
