Wonder Pillow for soothing sounds

Music, soft lighting and something to hug - what more could you want

by Katie Scott published on 29 December 2007

Sweet slumbers with soothing sounds are the promise of the latest must have gadget for the modern home.

The MPillow is the brainchild of designers Per Arlander, Madlene Linstrom and Ozgur Tasar.

It offers both light and sound as well as the comfort of a pillow.

The MPillow can connect to a computer wirelessly and music can be downloaded to it by way of MP3's or by using the sounds available on MPillow servers.

It is filled with technogel, which is a translucent plastic gel (so is squashy), and can be covered with a material of the users' choice.

The MPillow's lighting changes colours and intensity as the music or sounds change "creating the perfect ambience for the user".

Sadly, we have no price or availability details as yet.
