Korean company TG has announced an ultra slim PC, boasting a revolutionary design and weighing just 3kg to go up against Apple's Mac mini.

The Lluon Crystal measures 45.2 x 277 x 244.1mm, but despite this compactness, is built around a 1.66GHz Core 2 Duo processor.

It also offers 1GB RAM, a 320GB hard drive and a 256MB GeForce 8400 GS for around £639.

There is also a £745 version which includes a 2.00GHz Core 2 Duo processor, 2GB RAM, a 500GB hard drive, the same 256MB GeForce 8400 GS and built in Wi-Fi.

There is no news though, as yet, as to when the two models will be available outside of Korea.
