CES 2008: Creative adds speaker to Zen Stone MP3 players

Manages to squeeze in speaker somehow

by Stuart Miles published on 7 January 2008

Creative has found space in its diminutive MP3 player the Zen Stone and Zen Stone Plus to include a built-in speaker.

Announced at CES in Las Vegas, the tiny MP3 player, whose previous version received a hot product award on Pocket-lint will come in either a 1GB and 2GB models for the Zen Stone and 2GB and 4GB of memory for the Zen Stone Plus.

Other features include a FM radio, voice recording, clock/stopwatch and customisable equalizer settings.

Available in elegant matte black, dark blue, pink or champagne, the new ZEN Stone players feature a smooth, contoured design for a natural, comfortable fit in the hand. A translucent silicon skin with a clip is included in the box, and a sporty armband and ultra-portable keychain with a tiny case that carries the player are available separately.
