CES 2008: SanDisk double size of Sansa Clip and Sansa View

Bigger memory, same small size

by Stuart Miles published on 7 January 2008

SanDisk has announced it's increased the capacity for two of its flash-based MP3 players at CES in Las Vegas.

The company's answer to the Creative Zen Stone and Apple's iPod shuffle, the Sansa Clip moves to a top capacity of 4GB from 2GB, while the Sansa View the company's answer to the Apple iPod nano also doubles in size from 32GB from a previous top capacity of 16GB.

The new 4GB version Sansa Clip is due in February and will cost around $79.99 in the US while the Sansa View first introduced in September and featuring a 2.4-inch TFT colour screen will cost $349.99 when it launching in February.

No word on UK availability and pricing.

We will keep you posted.
