

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/12127/intempo-daisy-portable-internet-radio>

CES 2008: Intempo launch World's first Portable Internet Radio

Get 6000 radio stations on the go

by Stuart Miles published on 8 January 2008

Intempo has unveiled the World's first portable Internet radio at CES in Las Vegas.

The new internet/FM radio, code-named Daisy, will come with integrated wireless connectivity to allow users to connect to a wireless hotspot at home or out in the world and promises 20 hours of music from one charge of the units internal rechargeable battery.

Promised in-store from April priced at around £150, the Daisy will come with a glossy black fascia and silver speaker grill and support all Internet radio formats including Real and Windows Media.

However you will need to have access to a wireless hotspot as the Daisy doesn't come with an Ethernet port for a hard wired connection.

