Music tuition that won't blow the budget

by Ian Hughes published on 15 January 2008

Made any resolutions this year? If learning a musical instrument is one of them then look no further.

Icanplayit is a set of online tutorials for a variety of instruments, with free taster courses and very reasonable full-blown products.

With packages for guitar, bass, keyboards and clarinet, there should be something here for most wannabes and at around £30 for a full course of instruction the traditionally stretched January budgets of most people won't take too much of a hammering either.

Rock on.
