

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/12535/scalextric-signs-the-stig-topgear>

Scalextric signs The Stig

You'll be able to relive the track from the show

by Stuart Miles published on 30 January 2008

You'll soon be able to challenge The Stig in your living room thanks to a deal signed with the BBC and Scalextric.

The company famous for its slot-car racing tracks will be bringing Top Gear's "Powerlaps" to toy shop near you in March.

The set will come with the official challenging corners such as Hammerhead and Gambon as well as two special edition Stig hand throttles.

However rather than coming with a medium priced car, the set will come with a Ford GT and a Porsche 911 GT3R.

The set will be available in March and cost £100.

In related Scalextric news, the company has also announced that it has won the licence for new James Bond film "Quantum of Solace".

Out in October in time for the movie, racers will be able to drive Bond's DBS around the track.

