Mario offers helping hand for DS owners

Somewhere to plonk your console

by Stuart Miles published on 31 January 2008

Need somewhere to place your Nintendo DS when you're not using it? Corgi thinks it has the answer with a 12-inch high Mario.

What does it do?

Nothing, well apart from offering you to outstretched arms to dump your games console.

If only Corgi had added a charging socket, now that would have been great.

The 12-inch Nintendo character will cost £19.99 when it goes on sale later in the year.
