Activision has revealed plans to base an entire instalment in the Guitar Hero series around America's best selling hard rock band Aerosmith.

The new musical title is pencilled in for a June release and will be available on PS3, Xbox 360, Wii and PS2.

Guitar Hero: Aerosmith will have you playing as the band's guitarists Joe Perry, Brad Whitford and bassist Tom Hamilton.

As with other versions of the game, players will progress from unknown to rock legend, but this time follow the story of the band, taking in some "stand out" Aerosmith concerts and venues.

Activision have promised as well as Aerosmith's extensive back catalogue, there will be songs from other artists that inspired the group.
