Samsung go silent with Silencio vacuum cleaner

Silent but deadly

by Stuart Miles published on 12 March 2008

Samsung has shown off its newly announced Samsung Silencio SC9540 vacuum cleaner to UK press.

The device, which resembles the Master Chief from Halo's head, promises a host of features including a stealthy ninja-like performance when it comes to sound.

Considerably quieter than a Dyson, and designed so whoever is doing the cleaning doesn't disturb everyone watching the television, the new vacuum cleaner also offers a HEPA filter so air pumped back into the room is clean and incorporates silver nano technology to boot.

Costing £169 when it heads to the shops shortly, the boast is that the suck is so powerful that you'll be able to stick it to the wall.
