

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/13492/megawhat-episode-looks-at-televisions>

VIDEO: Megawhat checks out the latest TVs

Televsual treat in video...

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 17 March 2008

Megawhat.tv, the WebTV channel from the world of technology and gadgets brought to you in conjunction with Pocket-lint.co.uk, has a new episode waiting and ready to view now.

In this week's episode of Megawhat presenter Stuart Miles travels the length and breadth of Britain to bring you some exciting innovations in the world of television.

First up there's the Philips Aurea with Ambilight technology. For £3000 will this make your picture look bigger or is it just a light show fantastic?

Stuart also shows us Samsung's new 3D TV offering that needs goggles but offers an impressive depth of field and Toshiba's upscaling prototype.

Elsewhere there's a look - and listen - to Samsung's near-silent vacuum cleaner and see how the new portable Polaroid printer performs.

If you're reading this from Pocket-lint.co.uk, you can catch up with your favourite gadget show now by hitting play in the video screen above, or follow the link below or even hop over to www.megawhat.tv to check it out now.

