by Stuart Miles published on 11 April 2008

Pocket-lint has teamed up with Goldgenie to give you a chance to win a gold plated iPod touch just like the one David Beckham was presented for getting 100 caps playing for England (without the laser etching).

This £429 32GB iPod touch is fast becoming the preferred choice of the rich and famous when it comes to purchasing unique goldplated gadgets, and owners of this fabulous gadget include Amy Winehouse, Kate Moss, Victoria Beckham, Roman Abramovich and Elton John.

Goldgenie gold plate the iPod touch by placing it in a special device and then plating it in genuine 24 carat hardened gold! This process is done in-house at their Hatton Gardens office in London.

Each iPod is gold plated with a minimum of 5 microns of gold and comes complete with certificate of authenticity and warranty.

The company doesn't just offer gold iPods, it can gold plate virtually anything.

So head over to the competition page for your chance to win.
