Mystery Sony Ericsson video shows range of Xperia devices?

Unidentified touchscreen models

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 19 May 2008

What appears to be a promotional video for unidentified Sony Ericsson devices is sparking speculation that it could be the first footage of the forthcoming Xperia range of phones.

When Sony Ericsson launched the Xperia X1 back in February at the Mobile World Congress event, they described the arc-slider handset as the first in a range of Xperia-branded handsets.

The phones shown in the video above, that appear to be highly capable touchscreen multimedia efforts (note the PlayStation icons on display at one point) are different to the X1, and might just be exciting new handsets yet to be announced...
