Sony's HT-IS100 Bravia Theatre Micro System has gotten a US launch where it will be available in July for around $700.

One big box and five "incredibly" small speakers - roughly the size of a golf ball - the system has three 1080p HDMI inputs with repeater functionality and support for eight channels of uncompressed audio.

The 5.1 channel system, with 450 watts of power, includes a subwoofer with integrated 32-bit S-Master digital amplifier, Sony's S-AIR technology and the ability to add optional wireless rear surround speakers and multi-room wireless speakers.

The system also features Digital Media Port, Digital Cinema Auto Calibration, BRAVIA Sync, Dialogue Audio Enhancer and Portable Audio Enhancer - all Sony in-house tech that promises amazing performance.
