"31 days. 60 bands. One venue"

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 25 June 2008

From 1 July 2008, iTunes takes over London's KOKO for a month-long extravaganza of live music.

iTunes Live: London Festival 2008 will feature exclusive gigs from international acts such as Paul Weller and The Pretenders as well as hot up-and-comers such as Hadouken! and The Ting Tings.

Among lots of others, bands and artists due to appear also include Guillemots, Suzanne Vega, McFly, The Feeling, CSS, Feeder, The Zutons and Chaka Khan.

Tickets to the festival are free - but available only to competition winners - although anyone with an iTunes store account is eligible to have a go at winning a seat.

Visit the site now to enter to win tickets to your fave act, and if you aren't a ticket winner, know that each performance will be recorded and made available for sale on iTunes soon after.
