£299.99 for the 8GB model

by Stuart Miles published on 25 June 2008

O2 has confirmed the pricing for its Pay and Go iPhone 3G model.

Contrary to what other tech websites in the UK have been claiming as "exclusives", Pocket-lint can reveal based on real fact that the iPhone will be available for £299.99 for the 8GB model and 16GB for £359.99.

This also includes unlimited browsing and Wi-Fi for the first 6 months after you activate your iPhone.

At the end of the 6 months you can continue to receive unlimited browsing and Wi-Fi for £10 per month. O2 says they will notify customers at the end of the 6 month period by text with the option to unsubscribe.

UK customers will be able to choose one of O2's standard Pay and Go tariffs to use with your iPhone, and, the more you top-up each month, the more free minutes or texts you'll receive.

According to O2 this offer is applicable to all new and upgrading customers who purchase an iPhone on Pay and Go until 31 Dec December 2008.

Terms and conditions reveal that unlimited data and Wi-Fi applies to use in the UK only, subject to excessive usage policy. Unlimited Wi-Fi is available at any of the 9500 Wi-Fi hotspots from O2's partners The Cloud or BT Openzone.

UPDATE: O2 has since the writing of this article removed prices. We were unable to get a screen grab at the time, however full text read:
