Phones4U offers free laptop with mobile broadband

Get an FSC Esprimo for nada on a £30 a month Orange package

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 26 June 2008

Phones4u is following Carphone Warehouse in offering customers a free laptop when they sign up to certain mobile broadband deals.

If customers sign up to Orange mobile broadband for £30 a month they can get a Fujitsu Siemens Esprimo for free - or chose to upgrade to a Samsung R60 for a fee.

The Fujitsu Siemens laptop (worth £349.99) has an 80GB hard drive, 1GB of RAM, an Intel Celeron 540 Processor and a 15.4-inch widescreen display.

Including a free mobile broadband USB modem and 3GB of usage per month, Phones4U says this allowance means you can surf the web for 100 hours, send over 2000 emails, as well as download your favourite tracks and videos.

For those who need more storage, Phones4u are also giving you the chance to upgrade to a Samsung R60 laptop (worth £499.99) with a 120BG hard drive for £74.95.

The offer is available now at a Phones4u store near you.
