Pioneer introduces EX Series Speaker duo

"Fulfilling the needs of the most demanding audiophiles"

by Katie Scott published on 27 June 2008

Pioneer has announced two new loudspeaker sets joining the EX Speaker Series: the S-4EX bookshelf and S-8EX centre speakers.

Mirroring the design of last year's S-3EX tall boy speakers, these smaller sized multi-channel speakers are claimed to "fulfil the needs of the most demanding audiophiles".

Their designs include ceramic graphite diaphragm tweeters mounted concentrically within a magnesium coned midrange driver and the Precision Curve cabinet design.

Pioneer adds: "Ceramic graphite's lightness and exceptional strength push the diaphragm resonance far beyond the audible range, which results in a cleaner and more accurate sound reproduction".

Both loudspeakers support 160 watts of power.

They come in a beech high gloss veneer or dark teak matte finish and will be available as of October this year.

We don't have prices yet but we'll keep you posted.
