HTC has got in touch with Pocket-lint to confirm the slightly vague availability of the Touch Diamond in the UK, following previous reports that the launch had been delayed.

The HTC Touch Diamond will be available in the UK on all of the five major operators with Vodafone, Orange and T-Mobile having all now received stock for their stores.

Apparently these three operators are currently making the device available to customers, from free, on an average tariff of £35 per month.

In addition, the HTC Touch Diamond will also be made available to O2 customers in mid-August, with just dates for the device's launch on 3 tee bee cee.
