LG launches Centrino 2 powered laptops

But no word on availability yet

by Katie Scott published on 17 July 2008

LG has unveiled a new laptop line up following on the launch of the new Intel Centrino 2 technology

First up is the S510, which features a 15.4-inch LCD screen, an Intel Core 2 Duo processor T9400 (2.53GHz), 3GB of memory, and Nvidia GeForce 9600M GT graphic card.

This is shown in the clutches of a dapper looking chappie who's obviously supposed to be a businessman because he's wearing a tie.

The trendy youngsters have in their hands the R410 and R510 notebooks, which are designed for movie viewing, games and digital TV use.

Unfortunately, we have no further techie information nor any word about availability and pricing, but you'll know as soon as we do.
