WEBSITE OF THE DAY - huddle.net

Online collaboration made easy.
Huddle up people

by Ian Hughes published on 25 July 2008

Here's a great recommendation (if I say so myself) if you're one of those unlucky people who'll be taking your work home with you this weekend.

Huddle, like a few other services we could mention, offer you the ability to remotely access all your stuff from anywhere on the planet.

Huddle, unlike some other services we could mention, is a fully integrated online collaboration host which makes managing projects online with other users an absolute doddle.

It's difficult to explain exactly why it's so good - there so many features, so you'll just have to sign up for a free account and have nose about yourself.

At the very least you'll get some free online document storage...
