

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/16508/kensington-combosaver-portable-laptop-lock>

Kensington launches ComboSaver portable laptop lock

Small and light option for those on the go by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 30 July 2008

Kensington has launched the ComboSaver portable notebook lock, designed to offer laptop protection while on the move.

A specially designed combination lock with a coiled cable, Kensington says it's its "most portable and secure offering yet".

Aimed at students and mobile workers, the ComboSaver's T-bar mechanism and steel cable claim to provide optimum security, while a "slinky" style self-coiling cable means the device twists up to become compact.

Kensington says this means it is much smaller and lighter than other locks on the market, making it an option for people who need to carry their lock in their laptop bag.

The ComboSaver lock is on sale for £29.99 from Dixons, PC World and other online retailers.

