Nikon has announced a new bridge model; the P6000 to replace the P5000 previously available.

Sporting 13.5 megapixels, a 4x optical zoom, 3-inch LCD on the rear, the camera is almost the first compact digital camera to come with GPS built in so you can Geotag your images and an Ethernet socket so you can upload them straight to the web via a standard home router.

We managed to get a hands on with the new model to snap it from all angles.
