Phone design chiselled from maple

A wonder of wood

by Katie Scott published on 7 August 2008

The warmest of wood versus the sleekness of steel, or the practicality of plastic...

This latest phone concept from designers Hyun Jin Yoon & Eun Hak Lee combines modern phone technology with carpentry - that's age old pastime - in a phone carved from a tree.

The camera phone concept uses a thin wooden film to cover touch sensitive buttons that light up just below the surface.

The design measures 4.5x10.4x9.8 cm and slides open for more multi-media applications.
