Casio has launched a range of new compact cameras on Wednesday that promise to make sure you look beautiful every time you're caught on camera.

The new range will consist of four new models with the 10-megapixel touting EX-Z300 topping the pile in terms of features and offering.

The new model will sport a "Make-up" mode that will work in a similar way to the cloning tool on Photoshop blurring out and smoothing over blemishes in camera as you take the image.

"We believe we can differentiate our range in the compact market by offering unique features like this", a spokesman for the company told Pocket-lint.

Does it work? We grabbed the camera ahead of the launch to have a quick go.
