

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/17122/kodak-announces-p520-digital-frame>

Kodak announces P520 touchscreen digital frame

The first 5-inch frame in the its range to feature it by Verity Burns published on 22 August 2008

Kodak has added yet another photo frame to its range, but this time followed Toshiba with a touch-controlled 5-inch digital photo frame to its P-Series frame portfolio.

The P520 as it will be called will feature a "Quick Touch Border" included in its features.

This means you can flick through photos using the touch sensitive controls, but all at the edge of the frame so you leave the screen free of your grubby fingerprints.

It also comes with brand new Kodak EasyShare digital display software, which helps you view manage and organise your photos, and enables easy exchange of your photos from your computer to the frame.

On a purely cosmetic side of things, two colour-coordinated mattes in red and silver are also included so you can change the frame to meet your tastes.

Pricing for the UK hasn't been announced as yet, but you'll be able to pick one up from September. For the record, American prices have been pegged at the $79.95 mark, which is around £40.

