

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/17302/elac-rubik-cube-inspired-subwoofer>

Subwoofer gets Rubik's cube makeover

IFA 2008: Don't have to worry about solving it though by Stuart Miles published on 29 August 2008

A speaker inspired by the Rubik's Cube is has had a makeover to look like one at IFA in Berlin.

The Elac MicroSub 2010 BT is a square subwoofer than you can combine with two satellite speakers to create "a deep and powerful bass sound that is completely vibration-free", say the company.

To be honest we not sure how the MicroSub 2010 BT sounds, we just like that cute design.

The catch? With a price on application price tag you know it's going to be expensive, especially considering the standard white or black model costs over a £1000.

Germany company Elac sells its products in the UK through Kent Home Cinema.

