

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/17820/qantm-iphone-games-development-course>

London sees launch of iPhone games development course

Weekend and evening places available

by Katie Scott published on 22 September 2008

A course specifically designed for budding games developers with a special interest in the iPhone is now open for applications.

Qantm has launched what it is claiming is the first ever iPhone Game Development course.

The London, Islington based college is going to run the new course alongside its Game Design & Development Course.

Evening and weekend classes for the iPhone Development Course will start on 23 February 2009 for £3950.

Prospective students should have previous coding experience in any language and strong maths skills.

Following the London launch, the iPhone Course will be available in Qantm colleges throughout the world, including Brisbane, Melbourne, Sydney, Amsterdam, Berlin and Munich.

