Planon launches portable Bluetooth-enabled Printstik

World's smallest full A4 printer

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 30 September 2008

Planon has announced the launch of the Printstik, an ultra portable, Bluetooth enabled printer which is said to introduce "true mobility for users".

The Printstik is said to be the world's smallest full A4 page printer, enabling users to print from a range of mobile devices via Bluetooth or USB.

Developed specifically for business professionals and those on the go, the Printstik uses a self contained 20 page roll of paper and a rechargeable Lithium Ion battery.

Weighing in at 700 grams, the portable printer uses Advanced Thermal Technology and prints up to 3 full pages per minute.

The Printstik is priced at £199 available from www.planon.com.
