New Apple laptops coming 14 October

American journalists get invites

by Stuart Miles published on 10 October 2008

Apple has confirmed that it will be announcing new laptops, on the Tuesday 14 October according to a number of US tech and gadget websites.

Sending out the invite, which has yet to be sent to UK publications, Apple simply states:

"The spotlight turns to notebooks"

The invite features a MacBook Pro in shadow.

Rumours started to surface at the beginning of the month that Apple would announce a new range of laptops based on a new manufacturing process described as the "brick" so called because the unit is made from a single sheet of metal.

The event, which will be deemed a "Town hall" event, will be held at Apple's headquarters in Cupertino at 10am Pacific time.

Pocket-lint will be covering the event 6pm in the UK.

We will keep you posted.
