Bostitch Palm Nailer promises stressfree DIY

I would hammer in the morning...

by Katie Scott published on 10 October 2008

Hands up all of you who have managed to hammer your fingers instead of the nail they are unsteadily holding in place?

Bostitch reckons it has a solution in its Palm Nailer, which is a devise you hold in your palm, hover over a nail, and "bang, bang, bang", it's in.

It uses a compressed air drive and is claimed to be able to get most nails in in under a second - saving you time that could be much better spent in the pub.

It is $83 and is available from Amazon.
