Belkin Switch-to-Mac to make switching easy

For when you've had enough of your PC

by Stuart Miles published on 13 November 2008

Belkin has launched the Switch-to-Mac Cable hoping to make life easier for people looking to switch from a PC to a Mac.

The cable, which will cost around $50 is, according to the cable and networking company, "a simple way to transfer files, settings, preferences, and more from your PC to a new Mac computer".

Coming with software that promises to make life easy when you decide to switch the Migration Assistant automatically moves your music, movies, photos, files, and internet preferences, making the transition from PC to Mac as seamless as possible say Belkin.

Available Now in the US, switchers here in the UK will have to wait until February 2009.
