Pure launches high-end Avanti Flow

Streaming, pod-docking, DAB-ing and Internet radio-rocking new audio system

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 25 November 2008

Pure has launched the Avanti Flow, describing it as, "the ultimate next generation digital audio system".

A "high-performance" table-top DAB, FM and Internet radio with iPod dock and media-streaming capabilities, the Avanti Flow follows the Evoke Flow as a connected product from the radio co.

With piano-black looks and an OLED display, Pure boasts that the Avanti Flow is good enough to be the "main" audio system in the home.

The Flow combines a 5.25-inch downward firing subwoofer, 2 x 3-inch mid range drive units and Pure's "Clearsound" tech, a completely new and apparently - enhanced - hi-fi quality audio subsystem.

The Avanti Flow will be available in time for Christmas at £279.99 from all good stockists.
