

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/23635/pocket-lint-tools-have-moved-location>

Tools have moved

SITE NEWS: Seems we were being too subtle by Stuart Miles published on 20 April 2009

"You can print any article as a PDF?" Yep, that's right, you have been able to do so for quite some time for all our news and reviews on Pocket-lint, however, it seems that some readers have found our icons to tell you about how you can share a story a little to subtle.

So today we've made some changes, responding to your feedback to move them from a row of icons below the title of an article to their new position below the picture to make them easier to see on the page.

You'll now find the story tools under the picture and to the right of the copy.

Confused? Well to recap what they do, they allow you to check out the RSS pages index, create a PDF of the article for your ebook, share the article via the many social networking sites such as Digg and Stumbleupon on the web, save the article to your member's profile (if you've signed in) for reading later, email the article to a friend, or print the document for off line viewing. Wow.

Basically another day, another chance to make Pocket-lint even better and easier for you to use.

If there is something that you would like to see on the site in terms of new features please give us a shout via the feedback form or in the comments below and we'll do our best to get it included or added.

Stuart and the Pocket-lint team

MT / By Stuart Miles to the current wave of Microsoft "laptop frica by agreeing with the Redmond based th Apple and Microsoft can agree on is that tac is cool", an Apple spokesman Bill

ased on one of the adverts in the series ir says he isn't cool enough to own a Mac.

plenty more the Apple man had to say that . This included pithy comments about how "a en it doesn't do what you want" and that ave switched to Mac because they love the d power that comes with world-class hardware re that just works, right out of the box".

-  Subscribe to RSS feeds
-  Create PDF of this article
-  Share this article
-  Save this article
-  Email this article
-  Print this article

Microsoft has yet to feature a laptop hunter ad based on a user after a