White Nokia N97 only available at Phones4U

Retailer grabs 8-week colour exclusive

The Nokia N97, as Pocket-lint has previously reported, comes in white and black. It's a simple preference. Personally, we like the black variant better, but if you disagree and absolutely need to have the white one, then you might want to know that the only place stocking it will be Phones4U.

The retailer has grabbed an exclusive for 8 weeks on the colour, but will also be offering the black handset too. As Pocket-lint has previously reported, the N97 is now available to pre-order on the Phones4U website, before its release outside Nokia stores on 26 June.

The handset will be available for free on a £40 a month, 2-year contract with Orange, as well as a £45 a month, 18-month contract and for £100 on a £35 a month, 18-month contract. The latter comes with 600 minutes, with the other two offering 1200. 3000 texts come bundled with all the packages.

There'll also be other networks offering the handset, but these have yet to be announced, we'll keep you posted of the best prices.
