

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/24985/lenovo-t400s-laptop-laptop-launches>

Lenovo T400s launches

Thin and light option for business users

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 23 June 2009

Lenovo has announced the ThinkPad T400s laptop, said to have been created to "give business users a thin and light yet powerful, feature-packed PC".

Inspired by the ThinkPad X300, the T400 measures 0.83 of an inch and weighs in at under 4 pounds. With a 14.1-inch LED screen, the T400s gets the option of solid state drive storage and Lenovo's "Top Cover Roll Cage", made from monocoque carbon reinforced fibre, that makes the laptop super-sturdy.

Spec is dependent on what people are prepared to pay out, with a choice of Intel 2.53 GHz Core 2 Duo processors, a choice of solid state drive storage up to 128GB or 250GB hard drive storage, DVD burner or Blu-ray player or an ExpressCard slot or card reader.

Boasting up to 6 hours battery life, the ThinkPad T400 laptop is available in the States now with prices from approximately $1599.

In the UK, models start at approximately £1760 excluding VAT.

