Orange has announced it will be offering the "ultimate high-end Windows Mobile PDA phone" to its business customers.

The phone? The HTC Touch Pro2. The Touch Pro2, announced earlier this year, gets a 3.6-inch WVGA touchscreen and a slide out five row QWERTY keyboard.

Packing HSDPA (7.2Mbps), Wi-Fi and Bluetooth connectivity the handset is powered by a Qualcomm processor (MSM7201a, 528 MHz).

Elsewhere there's 512MB of ROM, 288MB of RAM and storage for files provided by microSD card. GPS and A-GPS will help with direction finding while photos can be captured with the 3.2-megapixel auto-focus snapper on the back.

Running Windows Mobile 6.1, the business angle for the phone comes in with its hands-free tele-conferencing feature and HTC's "Straight Talk" that lets users switch from an email account to single or multi-party voice call by pressing the image icon of the email sender.

The HTC Touch Pro2 is available now to Orange business customers.
