New LG Chocolate revealed in pics

Next-gen Black Label handset gets snapped

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 16 July 2009

If the leaks are all genuine, then LG's forthcoming Chocolate Black Label series handset is getting less mysterious by the minute.

Following the official news from LG that such a device is being readied for launch, we've had a leaked promo video and now these new photos.

Popping up on a German forum, the images show the elongated handset next to what appears to be a mini-me version.

The German leak sets the specs at an S-Class interface, a 5-megapixel camera, Wi-Fi and an FM transmitter.

We will keep you posted.
