Klikk - the ultra-portable camera mount

Super small tripod

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 11 September 2007

Available soon in two sizes and two colours the "Klikk" is an Italian innovation designed for small digital cameras.

It can be used as an LCD screen protector when not in use, but its primary function is as a small tripod.

Perhaps more accurately described as a "camera mount", its lightweight small-scale design means it'll slip easily into a bag until needed.

If you want to get yourself in the shot, or are shooting in low-light, the Klikk will give your digital camera some extra stability to nab the shot.

A screw fits through the Klikk's base and attaches to your camera's threaded tripod hole.

Complete with a lanyard and case, the Klikk will be shipping soon, price to be confirmed.
