

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/5670/rock-pegasus-335-business-laptop>

Rock launches Intel Centrino Pegasus 335

3 1/2 hour battery life and more

by Stuart Miles published on 27 November 2006

Laptop maker Rock, today announced the latest addition to their Pegasus laptop range. The Pegasus 335 features Intel Centrino technology with a Core 2 Duo processor.

Weighing just over 2kg and only 34mm high, the new laptop features a Core 2 Duo processor, a 13.3-inch WXGA TFT Screen (1280 x 768) with X-Glass and a digital TV tuner as standard.

The rock Pegasus 335 also has an Instant On button that gives access to video, music and digital TV at the touch of a button without booting into Windows similar to HP's Direct Play feature.

In addition, the laptop also has a "Silent mode" that, according to Rock, means the laptop can run several applications at once while staying noiseless.

Other features include a 3 1/2 hour battery life and a month's subscription to Napster.

Rock's Pegasus 335 is available now. Prices start at £722.55.

