

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/7387/fish-gadgets-embedded-tanks-wi-fi>

Feeding fish through Wi-Fi

Real aquarium screensaver from Wi-Fi enabled fish tank

by Ryan Haynes published on 18 April 2007

Yes, you got it right. Wi-Fi has come to fish tanks so you can monitor the scaly animals and even feed them when you are away.

A new Wi-Fi-enabled aquarium lets you see the fish, feed them, change the temperature and filter in the tank. Oh, and turn the lights on and off through the web interface.

This came from the contest out of the Embedded Systems Conference, just shows you what incredible inventions geeks can come up with.

