WEBSITE OF THE DAY - crimeface.net

A glimpse of the future for on-screen fiction.

by Ian Hughes published on 1 June 2007

To describe Crimeface as innovative is probably selling it a bit short. Launching today it's an episodic new media project that tells the dark tale of a black detective in a crime-ridden city on the trail of a serial criminal.

The story unfolds across the Internet, in cinemas, on DVD and via your mobile phone, so staying on top of it is no longer as easy as hitting that little green button on your Sky+ remote.

The people behind it are established writers, actors, directors and composers and it promises to be a trully compelling experiment in story-telling.

Book mark it now and see you in Union City.
