

<http://www.pocket-lint.com/news/8134/teddy-bear-mp3-players-kids>

Teddy-bear MP3 players for babies

The cradle will rock

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 8 June 2007

Attention dads!

It's never too early to get your offspring handling consumer electronics. Who do you think is going to hook up your 3D-HD TV when you're old and confused?

These baby-friendly MP3 players in nice, traditional blue-for-a-boy and pink-for-a-girl are aimed at little 'uns from ages 0 to 5 years old.

The players can withstand drool, drops and being used as teething aids, they play MP3 and OGG Vorbis files, hook up to your computer via USB and are battery powered.

Presumably they are for loving parental-types to download lullabies and stories to, rather than the Pantera back catalogue.

You can even record your own stories for your rug rat via the built-in voice recorder. Aaah.

Around 70 euros, links below.

