The latest data from Enterbrain games magazine shows that Nintendo's Wii outsold Sony's PlayStation 3 by a ratio of over 6 to 1 in June in Japan.

Ninty flogged 270,974 units of the Wii in the 4 weeks ending June 24, compared with 41,628 units for the PS3 and 17,616 units for the Xbox 360.

So far this year the Wii beat the PS3 4 to 1 in April, 5 to 1 in May and the latest ratio shows this impressive 6 to 1 lead for June.

We're not mathimagicians but even we could draw a chart for that trend.
