It is Tuesday, the Apple store is down, er, um...

What can we look forward to?

UPDATE: Nada

by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 17 July 2007

It's Tuesday, which as we all know is Apple's day of days for new products and announcements and the American Apple store is being updated.

This will create some blank looks - nothing new is expected from Apple, apart from products that fall into the realm of rumour...

So, we could get: the UK iPhone, the iPhone with 3G, the iPhone firmware updates, the touch-controlled mouse, the MacBooks with iPhone control pad, the iPhone nano, the revamped metallic iMac range, the ultra-portable tiny MacBook, um, yes, that about covers it.

Either that, or it's just routine maintenance...

STORY UPDATE: It appears that nothing much has changed on the American Apple online store - certainly no new major products.

Of course, if we're wrong and you've spotted something, hit us up via the "Tip off" link down and to the right of your screen...

We are busy updating the store for you and will be back shortly.
