Nokia to launch five new music-related phones today

Four other models to join N81 in music line-up by Amy-Mae Elliott published on 29 August 2007

We've had word that as well as the N81 due for launch tomorrow, Nokia also has four other new mobile phones up their sleeve.

The N81 gaming/music phone is definitely going to be making an appearance, as is that oft-rumoured black N95 music edition with 8GB capacity.

According to Gearfuse, the other three making up it up to five are music mobiles from the XpressMusic series - the 5700, 5610 and 5310.

This would all fit nicely into the music download service announcement we're expecting from the company as part of the same launch.

Pocket-lint is attending the event, so we'll bring you all the news, and more info on those rumoured new handsets as we have it...
